COLLEGE REPORT December 1975 Volume 28 Number 10

SEASON'S GREETINGS

The Search . . .

Appointing a new president is the most important function a college board of trustees performs. At Lycoming, the trustees' responsibility is clearly spelled out in the Charter and By-Laws. Great effort and care as well as sound judgment must be exercised before electing a new chief administrator. It is not an easy assignment and it cannot be done in a short time. Some of you will recall that it took a year to get Dr. Hutson on campus following Dr. Wertz's election to the episcopacy in 1968. Many colleges have taken more than a year to fill presidential vacancies. We are hoping to do better than that--only time will tell how successful we are.

To assist and advise the selection committee, the College has engaged the services of the Academy for Educational Development, a nonprofit, tax-exempt organization that offers professional educational services of several types.

How are presidential searches conducted? There are usually several logical steps that are followed. There are, of course, variations from institution to institution. Our procedure follows:

- A. The trustees, through the selection committee, must attempt to describe the sort of person they are looking for to fill the vacancy. This is done by listing certain qualifications, characteristics, experience, requirements or other criteria they feel are necessary or desirable. This they have done. (A list of all the desirable qualifications known to man is not helpful--no candidate can meet them all. Consequently, the list must be limited and selective.) Space does not permit us to include every detail of their "guidelines," but the following will be illustrative:

The president must:

1. Have an earned doctorate.
2. Be a member of The United Methodist Church.
3. Have had sufficient and successful administrative experience at the senior level, such as a dean or vice president of an educational institution, which demonstrates the ability to lead people and to work effectively with them.

The president should have the qualities and personal characteristics which would indicate that he:

1. Will be effective in supporting Lycoming's goals with faculty, students, administrators, alumni, parents, contributors, and the general public
2. Has a firm commitment to sound institutional fiscal policy and to fund raising.
3. Has an educational philosophy favorable to a college of liberal arts, a pre-professional college, educating young people for public service and involvement in social change

- B. Announcement of the vacancy is made. It was advertised in a national publication of wide circulation, the Chronicle of Higher Education, and nominations or applications were invited. It was announced to over two hundred newspapers, radio and television stations on our general public relations mailing list. It was also announced in the November issue of this publication which goes to all alumni, parents and friends. There has been no secret about the vacancy--the message is out.

- C. Applications and nominations are received. Kenneth E. Himes, secretary of the Presidential Selection Committee, has received approximately seventy-five applications and resumes at this writing. More come in each day.

- D. Now the real work begins. A screening process is necessary to narrow the field to a manageable number of qualified candidates. This is accomplished by committee members reading and rereading the applications, resumes, references and other information each candidate has submitted. At this point, judgments must be made by the members of the committee. The goal is to select four or five candidates whose "paper qualifications" clearly separate them from the others.

- E. Having selected the four or five "top" candidates, the next step is to investigate them thoroughly. References are carefully checked and other investigations may require committee members to visit candidates' campuses to consult with colleagues who work with them and know their capabilities. Later, some or all of the four or five will be invited to visit our campus--at different times, of course. While here they will meet representatives of the faculty, students, administrative personnel, alumni and trustees. They will be asked many questions and their answers will be noted very carefully. No doubt they will have questions of their own about the College, the community, the weather, etc.

- F. After all this, the selection committee will choose their candidate, based on their own judgments and on the input they receive from those who represent the various constituencies—faculty, administrators, students, alumni and other trustees. Their recommendation is then made to the full board of trustees, whose responsibility it is to appoint the president.

Nearly 200 years ago, Congressman Fisher Ames of Massachusetts said "Monarchy is like a great ship. You ride with the wind and tide in safety and elation, but by and by you strike a reef and go down. Democracy is like a raft; you never sink, but . . . your feet are always in the water."

It would appear that what Americans have to learn is how to be happy with soggy feet.

- G. The selected candidate is offered the position. Hopefully, he/she will accept it as offered. Sometimes, however, persuasion and changes of one kind or another are required. All this is negotiated between the president-elect and the trustees. Finally, a new president is appointed, later inaugurated, and a new era in the history of Lycoming College begins.

We hope this description will clarify the procedures and dispel some of the mystery that appears to obscure the process of searching for and selecting the next President of Lycoming

TKE Receives Award For Outstanding Service

Members of the Lycoming Chapter, Tau Kappa Epsilon, could be excused if they filed a claim to being the "most decorated" among the six Greek fraternities at Lycoming.

The fraternity in the last several years has received numerous commendations for community service, and each citation has been well-deserved for "service above and beyond the call of duty."

The awards have been conferred on the chapter because members have participated in several major community service projects which have involved long hours of hard work. But members say it has been well worth their time and effort, particularly the most recent project in which they raised an impressive total of $4,600 to combat muscular dystrophy by operating a "haunted house" during the Halloween season. More than 14,000 area residents toured the house during the five nights it was in operation.

The setting for the Halloween event was an old farmhouse just outside the city limits. The horror of the house was heightened by TKE members disguised as spooks, witches, and goblins determined to frighten and at the same time delight its visitors.

It was the second consecutive year TKE had operated the house, with the first year producing $2,700 in three nights. The well-organized project required long hours of planning and preparations and involved the cooperation of outside community groups. Makeup and costumes were donated by city merchants. Members of the MS Society, the Civil Air Patrol and members of the state police assisted with parking the large number of cars.

It isn't entirely certain who derived the most enjoyment from operating the "Haunted House." TKE members or the guests, but the end results are obvious. The MS Society has an additional $7,200 to combat the dread disease, and the fraternity, for its fine efforts, has received the Public Service Award from the international TKE chapter, two citations from the state of Pennsylvania, The Citation of Merit from the national chapter of MS, and the Benjamin Rush Award from the Lycoming County Chapter, Pennsylvania Medical Association.

However, the Halloween project is not the chapter's sole public service program. Several commendations have been received from the mayor of Williamsport for assisting with leaf removal and landscaping of Brandon Park on special Service Days during the last five years.

Dr. Loring B. Priest (left), professor emeritus of history, looks approvingly at the envelope President Hutson has just received from Charles E. Weyant, director of library services. The envelope contains over $735, the proceeds of a book sale by the College Library. More than 4,000 books of all kinds were sold and the receipts will be added to the Loring B. Priest Library Fund, from which the interest is used to purchase books in the fields of history and the humanities. Gifts to the fund are still being gratefully received.

CAMPUS NOTES

A grant of $540 has been awarded to the chemistry department at Lycoming College under the 1975 Spectroscopy Society of Pittsburgh College Grants Program.

The grant was one of seven awarded to colleges and universities in the East under the 1975 program. DR. DAVID A. FRANZ, assistant professor of chemistry at Lycoming, said the grant will be used to purchase two multi-element hollow cathode tubes for the department's atomic absorption spectrophotometer. He said the tubes will increase the capabilities of the chemistry laboratory for toxic metal analyses in the clinical and environmental areas.

Miss MARLENE R. STEINER began her assignment as a half-time Graduate Intern in Student Services on Tuesday, November 4. Her internship has been arranged through the Bowling Green University graduate program in College Student Personnel. She will be enrolled and taking Independent Studies and her Internship at the same time. In addition to her responsibilities in the Career Development and Placement Office, Miss Steiner will also live in North Hall, where she will assume the responsibility for emergency services at night for Rich Hall and North Hall residents, and she will share the weekend duty responsibilities with the Deans in Student Services.

STANLEY WILK, Sociology/Anthropology Department chairman, will present a paper entitled "Reason and Experience in Primitive Society," at the 74th Annual Meeting of the American Anthropological Association in December, 1975.

The ARENA THEATRE has been selected to produce the musical 1776 in April of 1976 as the opening event of the Williamsport area Bicentennial celebration. Two performances will be given April 1 and 2 at the Scottish Rite Consistory, followed by eight regular performances the next two weeks at the Arena Theatre. The musical director will be Paul Ziegler, with Gary Dartt responsible for set design and Brenda Dartt, costume design. Robert Falk will be responsible for stage direction.

Dr. DAVID A. FRANZ, assistant professor of chemistry at Lycoming, was named chairman-elect of the Susquehanna Valley Section, American Chemical Society at the monthly meeting of the section held at Susquehanna University, Selingsgrove. Dr. Franz will also serve as the program chairman for 1976.

Members of the Susquehanna Valley Section of the society include academic and industrial chemists from throughout Northeastern Pennsylvania. Nine colleges and universities are represented in addition to a number of industrial firms.

Lycoming to Host Astronomical Exhibit

DR. RICHARD R. ERICKSON, assistant professor of astrophysics and physics, and director of the Detwiler Planetarium, has announced that during the month of February, 1976, Lycoming College will be host to the first traveling exhibit prepared by the American Astronomical Society. We are one of only 11 institutions in the Northeast and 29 in the entire country to receive a booking during the display's initial four-year tour of the country. The tour began in April, 1975, at the Franklin Institute in Philadelphia and will include such places as the Strassburgh Planetarium in Rochester, N.Y., the McDonnell Planetarium in St. Louis, Missouri, the Hansen Planetarium in Salt Lake City, Utah, and the Air Force Academy in Colorado.

The exhibit is entitled "Birth of the Universe," and the public planetarium shows for February will be tied in to the exhibit. More complete details concerning the exhibit will be carried in the January issue and in the public media.

COOPERATIVE PROGRAM UNDERWAY

Lycoming College is participating in a cooperative program with the U.S. Small Business Administration and the Service Core of Retired Executives (SCORE) to offer courses in six subject areas for persons operating small businesses in the Williamsport area.

The purpose of the program is to give the small businessperson practical solutions to real problems. The six areas being covered are: Financial Recordkeeping and Analysis, Merchandise Pricing and Control, Marketing and Advertising, Personnel Management, Business Planning for Growth, and Strengthening Business Management.

No tests or grades will be given, but those completing four of the six courses will receive certificates from the College and SBA certifying completion of the courses.

The first course started in October and the final one will begin late in May. Each course carries a fee of $36.00 payable to Lycoming College. For further information, contact Dr. H. Bruce Weaver, Department of Business Administration, Lycoming College, who is coordinator of the program.

WARRIORS BEGIN BASKETBALL SEASON WITH WINS OVER BOWIE, ALLENTOWN

When graduation last spring left intact Coach Dutch Burch's young basketball team which had closed the 1974-75 season with 8 wins in the final 12 contests after a slow start, it was easy to understand why Warrior fans expressed optimism about 1975-76. And that optimism could be warranted if early season results are any indication.

The Warriors, with a solid starting five provided from a squad of ten returning players and two outstanding freshmen, opened the season with a 65-60 come-from-behind victory over Bowie State before soundly trouncing Allentown College, 98-84, a win that was more lopsided than the score indicates. Coach Burch cleared his bench of all 12 players before the first half had ended after the Warriors stormed into a solid 32-12 lead midway through the first half.

The Warriors are again led by John DiMarco, last year's top scorer. The 5-11 senior guard and team captain began the season auspiciously with 46 points in the two games. DiMarco, from Havertown, is one of only three seniors on the squad. The others are Dennis Schmidt, a 6-2 guard from Elysburg, and Steve Serbun, a 6-4 guard from Philadelphia. Both are lettermen.

The two tallest men on the team at 6-6, sophomore Bill Conroy, of Philadelphia, and junior Jeff Billman, of Tamaqua, have both played well under the boards to complement DiMarco's outside shooting and have scored in double figures. A pleasant surprise has been Mike Brown, a 6-2 freshman from Havertown. Brown broke into the starting lineup in the Bowie game and has been playing well. He hit 18 points against Allentown, almost all from the outside. Another freshman who has been impressive is Mark Molesky, a 6-3 guard from Montoursville. Mark saw his first action in the Allentown game and contributed six points and grabbed eight rebounds.

Others on the squad include DiMarco's sophomore brother Jim, a 5-8 guard; Jim Coyle, a 6-4 guard from Secane; Jack Connell, a 5-7 guard from Titusville; Tom Halligan, a 6-3 forward from Rumson, N.J., and Ray Riggins, a 6-5 forward from Westville, N.J.

NINE WRESTLING LETTERMEN RETURN

Coach Budd Whitehill had 28 candidates, including 9 lettermen, competing for starting assignments on a Warrior wrestling team which was to open its season in early December in a nine-team tournament at Bucknell. The remaining schedule included 12 dual meets and one quadrangular.

Five of the returning lettermen had winning seasons last year in dual meet competition. They included Bill Beasley (118), 9-3; Harold Shaw (142), 7-1; Lloyd Reiter (150), 8-3-2; Steve Borja (158), 5-3, and Randy Parsons (190), 7-6. Other lettermen competing for starting spots include Marco Soto (126), Craig Savitsky (158), Brad Young (190), and Greg Minarchick, heavyweight.

Of the 12 dual meets, divided equally at home and on the road, the four toughest opponents will probably be the University of Maryland at College Park, West Chester at home, Franklin and Marshall at home, and Wilkes at Wilkes-Barre. The Middle Atlantic Conference championship tournament will be held at Lebanon Valley on February 20-21.

SIX NAMED TO ALL-MAC GRID TEAM

Six Lycoming players, five from the defensive unit and one from the offense, have been named to the 1975 Middle Atlantic Conference Northern Division, All-Star Football Team selected by the conference coaches. Two of the six were also named to the squad last year.

Repeating were MIKE PROWANT, the Warriors' 220-pound sophomore middle guard from Duboistown, and RANDY PARSONS, a 205-pound junior linebacker from Camp Hill, who led the team in tackles the past season. Prowant was a first-team choice in 1974 and Parsons made honorable mention. Both are on the first unit this year.

Joining Parsons and Prowant on the first team from the defensive unit were co-captains STEVE WEIGLE, a 210-pound junior end from Williamsport, and JIM RICH, a 175-pound senior defensive back from Mechanicsburg. Rich, who was a slotback during his first three years at Lycoming, was named to the all-star team his first year on defense. JERRY BUTLER, a 220-pound defensive tackle from Philadelphia, was given honorable mention.

Receiving all-star recognition from the offensive unit was JOHN VANASKIE, the Warriors' 200-pound senior tight end from Shamokin. Vanaskie, an outstanding blocker, led the team in pass receptions with 17 for 245 yards and 2 touchdowns.

Parsons, Prowant, Weigle, Rich, and Butler were key figures on a Lycoming defensive unit which ranked first in the nation among small colleges on total defense throughout most of the season. The Warriors, who also finished first on defense in the conference, held their eight opponents to an average of 133 yards and allowed a meager 7.5 points per game. Lycoming's 6-2 record was the best in 17 years.

Parsons led the team in tackles with 90, including 57 solo and 33 assists. He also recovered two fumbles and blocked a punt. Weigle recorded 35 solo tackles, recovered 2 fumbles, blocked 2 punts, intercepted one pass, and recorded 8 sacks of opponent quarterbacks. Prowant, who missed the Lock Haven game because of a broken hand, had 34 individual tackles, recovered one fumble and sacked the quarterback 4 times. Butler made 37 solo tackles, recovered 3 fumbles and had 8 quarterback sacks.

Rich, playing a defensive position for the first time in his intercollegiate career, solidified the Warrior secondary. He participated in 23 tackles from his safety spot while intercepting 3 passes and recovering 2 fumbles. He also scored a touchdown.

TWO BOOTERS ON MAC ALL-STAR TEAM

Two members of the Lycoming soccer team have been named to the Middle Atlantic Conference, Northern Division, All-Star Team by conference coaches.

AL LOCKWOOD, the Warriors' outstanding senior forward and top scorer for the last three years, was chosen to the first team, and JEFF SWENSON, senior goalie, was named to the second team. Lockwood is from Rochester, N.Y., and Swenson is a resident of Upper Montclair, N.J. Both played major roles in the offensive and defensive efforts of the Warriors in the recently concluded season. Lockwood scored 13 of the 21 goals recorded by Lycoming in a 4-6 season, while Swenson was outstanding in blocking the kicks of Lycoming opponents.

SWIMMERS SPOIL DEBUT OF COACH

Susan Hetrick's debut as the first woman coach of the Lyco swimmers was spoiled when both teams lost their first two meets to Franklin and Marshall and Dickinson. Team I was defeated by the Diplomats, 59-34, and lost to the Red Devils, 52-41. Team II was swamped by the Dips, 78-10, and the Devils, 76-15. Lack of depth, particularly on Team II, has handicapped Mrs. Hetrick's efforts to develop a winning team. Team II has a 10-meet schedule and Team I will meet 7 opponents during the 1975-76 season.

It all started in the spring semester in 1974 when NANCY HANEY LADY took a sabbatical from her English teaching position at Curtin Junior High School in Williamsport. She enrolled for several courses at Lycoming College including one taught by Professor Hancock called, "The Disadvantaged Child." As a part of that course she spent a week in the hills of southeastern Kentucky. Accompanying her on that field trip were five cougars from her class. Ever since she got back from Kentucky, she's been carrying the message of the United Methodist Red Bird Mission in Henderson, KY to church groups in north central Pennsylvania. She is pictured here (on the left) with Mrs. Sheldon Lee, president of the United Methodist Women at the Wesley United Methodist Church in Bloomsburg. Through slides, she gave an interesting presentation of the mission's program. There are various outreach projects such as the movable classroom for remedial reading, early child development center, the Pine Mountain environmental center, the craft shop at the Heim House and the new Red Bird Hospital. She also displayed crafts made by the people of that area.
